| Article: | Annex: | Clause: |
| Key words: EN 1891, conditioning | | |
| Question: How to consider instructions for use of a EN 1891:1998 that requires or recommend the end user to precondition the rope before using it (e.g.: soak it, wash it,...)? | | |
| Solution: This claim is acceptable but if the instructions for use requires (e.g. by using 'shall') to precondition the rope before use, the lab shall carry out the preconditioning according to the instructions for use before testing the rope | | |
